Customer Problem Statement Template:

An industrialist holds his own iron based company and he wants to transfer profit money earned from the industry to the business co-partner. So, he login to the website in the browser. But it takes some time to open the website then he searched for all details about the transactions. At last he entered the credit card details, username and other credentials for the transaction of money.

Then he received the message the transaction was successful for the certain amount. After some minutes he received another message that his bank balance is null. Then only he realized it was a fake website and his were stolen.

To avoid this we need to solve this problem by using web phishing detection.
